Profile

Prior to pupillage with Unit Chambers, Kelsey was employed as a family Paralegal as Slater Heelis which enabled her to gain a comprehensive understanding of and experience in all areas of family law. She played a major role in building and progressing cases to produce the best outcomes for clients, whilst providing client care of the highest standard.

Kelsey was often called upon by colleagues to conduct research of law and procedure, draft court documents, and attend court hearings with clients. She used her time at the firm to equip herself with the experience and skillset required for a seamless transition to pupillage and a successful career at the bar thereafter.

As a personable but professional individual, Kelsey has a natural ability to build rapport with clients from the widest cross-sections of society and adapt her approach to suit their individual needs. She has developed her interpersonal skills both in the professional arena and through her voluntary endeavours.

In her career thus far, Kelsey has dedicated time to providing pro-bono legal services with various institutions, including but not limited to Citizens Advice Bureau. She is passionate about using her capabilities to assist those in need and with limited access to resources.
