Interests

Outside of law she enjoys cooking and keeping fit by going to the gym, particularly like high intensity and weight classes. She also enjoys travelling and a bit of clothes shopping!

Profile

Prior to commencing pupillage with Unit Chambers, Maisie has worked as a volunteer for several organisations including, but not limited to, the National Centre for Domestic Violence and the Litigation Programme at the University of Law. These experiences have enabled her to gain comprehensive knowledge of different areas of family practice. Maisie has worked independently and as part of a team to progress each case from start to finish, achieving the best outcomes for her clients whilst providing client care of the highest standard. She has conducted legal research of both law and procedure, held client conferences, attended virtual hearings and drafted court documents. These experiences have facilitated her smooth transition to pupillage by equipping her with skills necessary to succeed.

Having worked with a wide-cross section of society in both her employment and voluntary endeavours, Maisie has strong interpersonal skills. She is able to adapt her communication style to suit her client's individual needs and can confidently build a rapport with her clients.

As she progresses in her career at the Bar, Maisie is keen to develop her practice in all areas of family law. She has a particular interest in public and private children.

Qualifications
